What is Book Talk?
Each month we read and discuss one aspect from a book related to our preschool themes. Students practice important reading and writing skills. This year we will practice skills such as: sequencing events, retelling a story, writing stories through words and pictures, and much much more. It also gives students a great opportunity to show off their work.

This month’s book talk was all about the students and what makes them special or different. After reading Todd Parr’s It’s Ok to Be Different, students drew a self-portrait and picked one thing that made them special. Students were very creative with their drawings. Also, when picking a special characteristic about themselves they came up with unique responses. Students responded with “I am special because Mommy tells me” and “I am special because I eat noodles.” Students really enjoyed sharing what makes them special. Everyone did such a wonderful job! Congrats to our AM friends: Alexis, Justus, Logan, Madison, & Addison and our PM friends: Myra, Hannah Addison, Tyson, & Mia. Their worked was showcased on this month’s bulletin board. New friends will be showcased next month!
