TIPS TO HELP YOUR SON BE SUCCESSFUL

- Make sure you are positive with your son in his academic and athletic career.
- Do not make excuses for your child's performance or lack of performance. Help them by finding out what will make them better.
- Be a positive fan. Cheer in a positive way. Be a role model. Be positive in everything you do!
- No matter how hard it is, you must remember your son is part of a bigger picture.
- Urge your child to work to constantly improve himself. There are always opportunities for growth, whether it is physically or emotionally, it is important to establish this notion within your child.
- If you are not a coach, it is usually better to stay away from coaching them. It sends mixed messages, which can be negative for both the player and the team.
- Contact the coach with any problems. If an issue is not brought to my attention, there is no way to for it to be solved.
- Your child is a reflection of what you have taught him to be. Make sure you have taught him to be a great team member first!
- These times are once in a lifetime. Enjoy them with your child. This is the one and only time that you both will have this opportunity.
